Meandering Along the Main Stem

By WASH FAYETTE

Just about every time I see the race track at the Fayette County Fair grounds, where multitudes of people have witnessed some really spectacular racing over a long period of years, I recall one of the most amusing incidents I have ever witnessed on the track.

It was quite a number of years ago when some kind of a celebration was being held at the Fair Grounds, that a mule race was arranged.

Big "Tut" Jackson was to ride one of the mules—and did.

Now it seems that "Tut" had been out in Kansas a short time before the race was scheduled, to take place, and had knocked the socks off—or socked the block off of a big "ham andegger" out there, so he decided that Kansas would be the proper name for his long eared, smooth tailed mount.

Well, the race started, and as I recall it, Tut was well in the lead with "Kansas" gaining ground with every leap, when all of a sudden the mule headed toward a big patch of sunflowers on the southside of the track and a moment later had completely vanished in the forest of big sunflowers.

Talking with Tut afterward, he said he just could not figure why "Kansas" bolted into the sunflowers and lost the race. I promptly assured him it was because Kansas is the sunflower state, and his mule "Kansas" must have developed an affinity for sunflowers. Anyway it was a good race.

Older residents of New Holland will remember E. B. Lewis, who passed away at his home in St. Louis, Mo., last Sunday at the age of 82. He was editor and publisher of the New Holland Leader for some time, and after leaving New Holland years ago spent most of the remainder of his life on Lima newspapers, having been on the editorial staff of Galvin Brothers newspapers for 25 years. He went by the name of "Colonel," had a strong personality, a keen wit and a ready tongue, which never failed him in any situation. He boasted that he had belonged to every political party, including the Socialist, and often took active part in campaigns. He was survived by the widow and one daughter, Miss Hazel A. Lewis, with whom he made his home. Miss Lewis being the children's literature editor of the Christian Board of Publications of the Disciples of Christ.

Speaking of giving lifts to hitch-hiking soldiers en route home for short leaves of absence, here is one that really delights the heart.

Two boys in uniform were standing in West Court Street trying to thumb a ride eastward. It was apparent they were not good hitch-hikers or they would have gone further on their way to catch the outgoing traffic instead of the incoming.

A local man who certainly has the right spirit, but who is too modest to have his name mentioned, took in the situation, and hauled the two boys to the eastern edge of town, on Washington Avenue. They were headed for New York.

As the man turned around and was driving away, along came a woman in an automobile bearing a New York license. She immediately halted and picked up the homeward bound soldiers. That's what you call real luck.

A Rhode Island red hen owned by W. A. Taylor, of the Bogus road, has just contributed a Victory egg to the cause.

In fact this particular hen has done a little better than produce an egg with a "V" on it.

While the V is distinct on one side, some extraordinary capers have been cut on the other side.

What at first appeared to be a Japanese rising sun on the egg, when scrutinized closely, appears to be a custard pie splashed over the face of the Jap, like what happened at Midway Island for instance!

Do wars bring more boy babies into the world to offset the loss in battle? Maybe it's just a happen-so but this summer's crop seems to be definitely masculine . . . with just enough girl babies to keep it interesting. Maybe some local statistician can check up on this situation and determine if Mother Nature is really taking care of the future.

INVADERS LEAP INTO SEA

But, Despite Heavy Cost, Japs
Put Force on Island Not Far from Yank Post

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, July 24—(AP)—Before the Japanese could settle down in their newly-seized base on the south-east coast of New Guinea Allied airmen went to work on them yesterday, knocking out the third transport in three days, destroying shore installations and forcing frenzied invasion troops to leap wildly overboard from landing barges.

But despite the heavy cost the enemy went ahead with operations in the Gona Mission-Buna area, where a toehold was gained Wednesday, and a military spokesman indicated another small sea-borne Japanese force had been put ashore at Ambasi, 30 miles up the Papua Peninsula coast from Buna.

Allied dive-bombers, used for the first time against land targets in New Guinea, and medium bombers made five separate raids on the Gona Mission-Buna area and a headquarters communique said they started numerous fires.

SABOTEUR SUSPECT HELD IN CINCINNATI

Three Army Uniforms Are Found in Possession

CINCINNATI, July 24—(AP)—Emmett D. Kirgan, chief of detectives, said today that with the finding of three army uniforms in the room of a suspect held here as a suspected German saboteur, he was investigating the possibility of a connection between the man and German agents landed recently by submarines along the east coast.

"He's no dummy," commented Kirgan, adding that the suspect was evasive in answering questions, particularly about the money which the officer commented was "too much for a soldier to be carrying around."

Three uniforms found in the man's room at a cheap downtown hotel, were too small for him. He said he deserted a month ago.

"He speaks with a slight German accent," said Kirgan, "and we believe there's some connection between him and the saboteurs now on trial down in Washington. He may have been supplying uniforms to other enemy agents throughout the country."

MORE HARD COAL WANTED TO MAKE UP FOR OIL LOSS

WASHINGTON, July 24—(AP)—Donald M. Nelson asked hard coal mines today to step up their output to substitute for oil tanker losses. Nelson invited labor and management of 300 eastern Pennsylvania mines to form committees for participation in the war production drive. He said hard coal was needed for army cantonments and the east's war production factories this winter as well as workers' homes.

CAUCASUS OIL EYED BY HITLER

Nazi Army Surges To Within
280 Miles of Nearest Field
As Reds Plan Last Stand

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, July 24—(AP)—The German command turned covetous eyes on the oil laden Caucasus today as its military machine rumbled through the lower Don River steppes within 280 miles of the nearest oil fields in the rich producing area between the Black Sea and the Caspian.

It was evident that the Germans are trying to isolate the north Caucasus by cutting the rail line which runs from Stalingrad to Tikhoretsk, then to thrust southeast along the main line which runs from Rostov some 800 miles to the great Caspian oil port of Baku along the north slopes of some of the highest mountains in the world.

Although nothing had been heard recently from the German forces poised on the Kerch peninsula of the Crimea, it was obvious that the Nazi commanders there, too, were looking across the narrow strait, eager to try a thrust into the Caucasus from the flank.

The closest oil to the Germans in their present advance to the lower Don is at Maikop, 280 miles south of Rostov on a spur

By KEITH WHEELER SOMEWHERE IN ALASKA (Delayed)—This is the record of a 10-day 3,000-mile trip out along the Aleutian battlefront to Kiska Island and return.

Essentially it is the record of a personal adventure and is told as such because it was an experience that almost every American who respects his citizenship would give much to have known. Americans are living and fighting in the Aleutians—and the Aleutians are American soil. They are fighting and dying there to stop an invader, threatening their home land itself.

They lead a brutally hard, cheerless and dangerous life.

NEW YORK, July 24—(AP)—The Tokyo radio broadcast a Domei dispatch today in which a Japanese correspondent on Kiska Island at the western end of the Aleutians reported that United States bombers were attacking Japanese forces there two or three times a day, dropping bombs through the fog.

The broadcast quoted the correspondent as saying that Japanese forces who have moved into barracks on the island suffered from loneliness and hardships and faced a bitter cold winter which would set in during September.

CURB IS SOUGHT FOR PROFITEERS IN WAR WORK

House Committee's Probe of Contracts Reveals Most
'Doing Honest Job'

MINORITY CASTS SHADOW

Inquiry Discloses Average of Profits 8.1 Percent of Cost;
Industry Praised

WASHINGTON, July 24—(AP)—

—Laws to curb the profiteering fringe of war contractors were demanded today as the result of a year-long investigation by the house naval committee.

In a summation of its inquiry, the committee said 95 percent of contractors were doing an honest job but "the other five percent appear to be taking advantage of the war situation."

For that group, the report suggested action to limit profits. It added, however, that "whether this ideal should be achieved through a direct limitation law, excess profits taxes, or some other means should be carefully considered by the proper committees of congress."

The excessive profits of the five percent group ranged as high as 1,768.22 percent on individual contracts. This was the black spot in a report which otherwise commended the navy for its "high degree of efficiency" and industry as a whole for doing a "magnificent job."

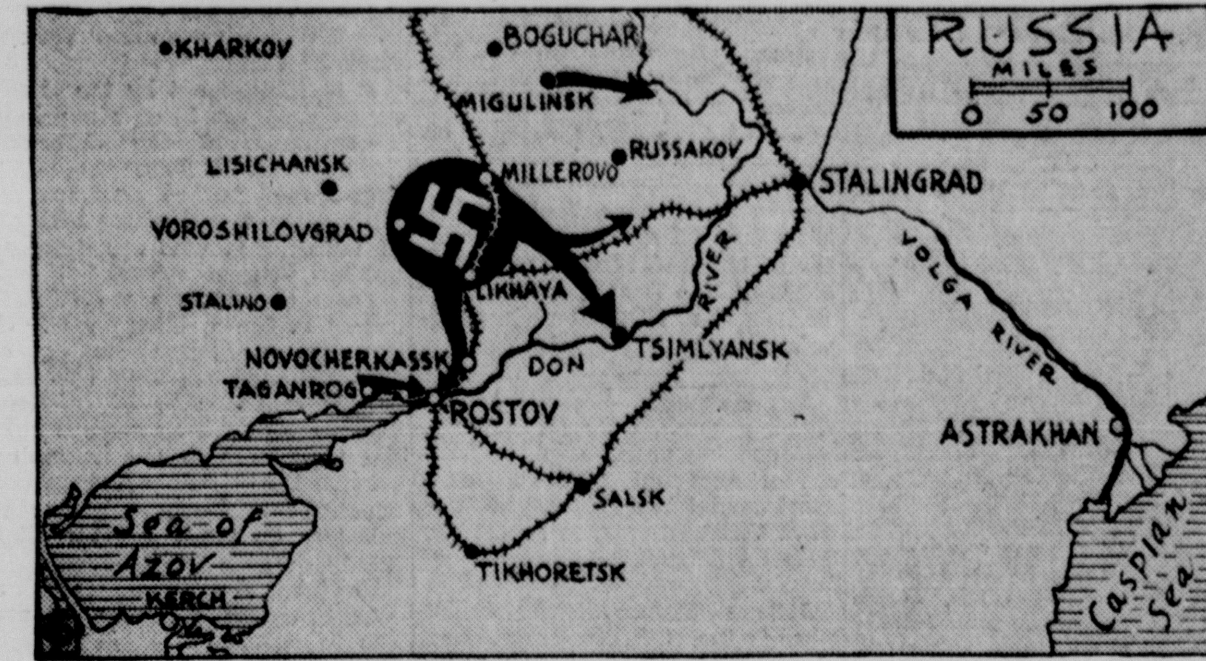

On the basis of its study of 39,405 naval contracts, with a total value of $4,599,087,085, the committee reported that profits averaged 8.1 percent of cost, and described that figure as "reasonable." Largest profits in a specific field showed up in engineering and architectural where a survey of contracts of 66 firms disclosed an average profit of 25.97 percent.

The committee said that many of the contractors voluntarily had reduced their profits when "the situation was called to their attention." It reported that it had saved the government more than $700,000 already "by suggesting and assisting in the voluntary negotiation of contracts."

The committee made public figures showing a 360 percent increase in ship construction over a year ago, and development of an air arm which it said would "provide the United States with the strongest offensive force in naval history."

It said 2,230 naval ships were building as of June 30, 1942, as compared with 697 a year ago.

SOVIETS BATTLE TO STEM NAZIS AT CAUCASUS GATE

Moscow dispatches tell of "great losses" suffered by attacking German armies as the Russian forces battle to keep the enemy from the Caucasus. Heavy fighting was reported raging near Novocherkassk and Tsimslyansk, midway between Rostov and Stalingrad, key cities which the Germans are approaching. The Central Press map above shows how the fighting is progressing.

U. S. Calls on World To Fight For Freedom from Axis Yoke

By WADE WERNER

WASHINGTON, July 24—(AP)—The United States is calling on all people who hope to keep their freedom, regain lost freedom or win new freedom to help defeat the Axis now.

Secretary of State Hull sounded the call last night in an address shortwaved to all countries—friends, foes, defeated nations and those still listed as rigidly neutral. He stressed that the conflict now raging is "not a war of nation against nation" but a worldwide fight by those who love freedom against would-be conquerors who seek to enslave all mankind.

Characterizing professions of neutrality in such a conflict as "absurd and suicidal" he pictured the worldwide war as a test of the caliber of nations and individuals.

"There is no surer way," he said, "for men and for nations to show themselves unworthy of liberty than, by supine submission and refusal to fight, to render more difficult the task of those who are fighting for the preservation of human freedom—unless it be to align themselves freely and voluntarily with the destroyers of liberty."

Then, in a sentence apparently aimed at the militarily helpless inhabitants of Axis-occupied countries, he added:

"There is no surer way for men and nations to show themselves worthy of liberty than to fight for its preservation, in any way that is open to them . . ."

Hull asserted that in this vast conflict the wholehearted support

NEW WELDED TANKS NOW IN PRODUCTION

Only in Blueprint Stage When
U. S. Entered War

DETROIT, July 24—(AP)—General Motors Corporation disclosed today with war department approval that the new army tank plant built by its Fisher Body Division has been completed and is rolling out the all-welded M-4 type of land dreadnaught in train-load quantities.

Lines of freight cars loaded with tanks wrapped in protective covering now leave the plant on a special track almost daily, the announcement said.

When the United States entered the war, the welded M-4 tank was only in a blueprint stage. In January Fisher received its contract and the first tank was not scheduled to be built until the new plant was completed. But engineers went to work in another factory and the first of the M-4's was turned out in 47 days. By the time the new plant was finished large numbers of machines were on their way to the battle front.

But, Eddie—don't beautiful, scantily clad cuties going through

"Naw, I never pay any attention to those dames," replies Eddie, hopelessly. "It's just all in a day's work. If you'd seen as many of those half-dressed gals as I have in this business, you'd understand what I mean."

Fierce Fighting Continues
On Other Sectors — Reds
Attack on At Least One

By CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH

(By the Associated Press)

Germany proclaimed today that Rostov had been stormed and captured, although not yet mopped up, and Moscow reported that unprecedented numbers of United States-built planes—especially Douglas Boston bombers—had taken to the Caucasus skies to bolster Russia's fight for life.

The Hitler command announced today capture of Rostov, capital of the Northern Caucasus, on the main railway and pipeline which tap the oil and mineral wealth of the deep Caucasus. And the Russians, while not acknowledging the claim, said the battle had reached the city gates.

Quickly the Germans followed this up with an announcement that resistance by fresh Russian troops within the Don bend had been broken.

Reds Plan Attack

Moscow dispatches said, however, that Red armies had taken a last ditch stand on the lower Don and were developing a flank attack against the east wing of the German lodgement in the Tsimslyansk region, about midway between Rostov and Stalingrad.

From the wording of the Moscow communique the flank action was on a small scale, however.

The Red air force was still a power in the Caucasian skies, "inflicting continuous blows on enemy formations and communications," as the communique put it.

The Russian stand on the Don indicated a determination to hold

NAZI PLANE ROUTED SCOUTING ICELAND

Norwegian Patrol's Attack
Leave It in Flames

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, July 24—(AP)—A German Focke-Wulf, flames shooting from its engines, disappeared into the clouds after an offshore flight with Royal Norwegian airforce plane yesterday afternoon, United States army headquarters said today.

The Norwegian patrol plane, a Northrop, sighted the German 15 miles off the east coast of Iceland, closed to 1,000 yards and opened fire. The Norwegians said they saw their machinegun bursts start a fire. The Norwegian plane was not hit.

This was the second time the Norwegians have engaged German planes in the Iceland area. A few months ago a German bomber escaped into a fog bank off the north coast after being hit.

Hull's Talk Is Pillar of Fire for Allied Peoples Fighting for Peace

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
(Wide World News Service)

Secretary of State Hull's constructive program for a better world after the carnage has ended must be recorded as one of the major developments of the war.

Anomalous though it may seem to talk about peace problems at the moment, this is precisely the time when it may be most beneficial. Mr. Hull's great document, in which we have a mingling of the spiritual and political, reaches out in four directions:

It is a pillar of fire for the Allied peoples as they march for victory. It affords encouragement to the enslaved people of the occupied countries. It rebukes neutrals for their "absurd and suicidal" policy. And last, but certainly not least, it may in due course provide the impulse for the populations of enemy countries to abandon their support of a barbaric aggression for which many of them have had little heart.

The soft-spoken gentleman from Tennessee has brought a wealth of humanity to his historic task. He remains the evangelical prophet who for so many years tried to persuade Europe that it was headed for war; and he still, so to speak, carries his duelling pistols in his hat pockets, for he has mixed charity with firmness.

There are many facets to this new-world diamond which will blaze so brightly when the light of peace is turned upon it. We are to build for "human freedom and Christian morality." And at long last Mr. Hull may get a chance to see the removal of international trade barriers which he so patiently and persistently has advocated as essential to the economic security of mankind. But, perhaps, the point which will attract most attention is the provision for an international agency to keep the peace "by force, if necessary" for that represents the teeth in any measure of reform. Without an agency which can compel peace, we shall get a repetition of the tragedy of the Marble Palace on the shore of Lake Geneva.

Mr. Hull doesn't specify the nature of the agency, but the trend of events leads one to envisage a policing of the world so long as necessary by the Big Four of the Allies—the United States, Britain, Russia and China. There lies the power which can maintain order while reconstruction is carried out. The time has passed when we can afford to depend on soft language to keep would-be conquerors like Hitler within the bounds.

Speaking of Hitler reminds us of another duty which the Allies must perform. As Assistant Secretary of State Sumner Welles put it recently, we must mete out swift, inexorable justice to individuals, groups or peoples responsible for the war. The mainspring of all this evil is, of course, the Nazi fuhrer and he, together with his captains, must pay the price.

Still, while we must exact justice there's one thing which we mustn't do if we are to get the new world we want—and that is to approach the peace with hatred in our hearts. The Earl of Selbourne, British minister of economic warfare, last month assured the House of Lords that "Britain will never propose a revenge peace," and that clearly also is the underlying thought in Secretary Hull's program.

BAGBY RESIGNS; TAKES YELLOW SPRINGS POST

Was Jeffersonville School Head During the Past Three Years

Maurice S. Bagby, superintendent of the Jeffersonville schools the past three years, Thursday night, tendered his resignation to accept the position of superintendent of the Yellow Springs Schools.

Bagby was nominated for the Yellow Springs post by S. O. Liming, Greene County superintendent of schools, and the Yellow Springs board elected him by unanimous vote.

Supt. Bagby started his work as superintendent at Jeffersonville three years ago, and prior to that time had been a teacher in Clermont County for nine years.

In 1938 he graduated from the Cincinnati University with Masters Degree and School Administration and Supervision.

He expects to move to Yellow Springs within a short time and take up his new duties without delay.

In his resignation to the Jeffersonville Board of Education, Bagby expressed wishes for the success of the Jeffersonville Schools, community and board of education.

He stated that he especially regretted not to be with the student body the coming year.

The Jeffersonville board accepted his resignation and will employ a new superintendent within a short time.

During his three years at Jeffersonville, Bagby has accomplished a great deal of good work in the schools and community, and made a very wide circle of friends, all of whom deeply regret to see him leave, but extend well wishes for success in his new location, in a larger field.

At the meeting of the Jeffersonville board of education, Miss Margaret Smith, was hired as commercial teacher to take the place of Miss Porter, who resigned. Miss Smith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, a graduate of the Jeffersonville High School and Wilmington College. She has been teaching at Williamsport.

Other new teachers hired at recent meetings are Herbert Spencer, coach, who comes from Madison Mills; Mrs. Elizabeth Reiber Dunkle, from Ashville, music teacher; Miss Dorothy Bogenrife, of Mt. Sterling, grade school teacher, who takes the place of

RATIONING UNIT IS WANTED IN JEFFERSONVILLE

Appeal To Be Made To the State Board Within Few Days

A movement is on foot in Jeffersonville and vicinity to obtain a branch rationing board in that place so that it will not be necessary for residents of that community to make a trip to Washington C. H. to apply for rationing sugar or other materials which come under the rationing system.

It is pointed out by the business men, some 15 of whom held a conference at the Jefferson Township Hall, Thursday night, that there is no controversy with present rationing officials in the county, who are carrying out instructions.

Facts and figures were submitted at the meeting by C. G. Stuckey, hardware dealer of Jeffersonville, showing approximately the number of persons who would have to make a special trip here to the rationing board, the mileage involved which he said would be wear and tear on tires, and the time lost in making the trips.

Until a few weeks ago a branch of the rationing board was in operation in Jeffersonville, and it was said the convenience to the public was such that after removal of the branch, the loss has been keenly felt, and decision has been reached to do something about it.

A committee is expected to visit the State Rationing Board officials within the next few days and lay the matter before them in an effort to obtain a branch of the county board in Jeffersonville.

GALS DON'T BOTHER HIM BUT WHAT A LIFE THIS PIANO PLAYER LEADS

as it used to be. But let him continue:

"Most of the time, just when I start playing some gal gets crossed up on her steps and the director yells 'stop.' After he shows her her mistakes, he yells to me to start again.

"Sometimes I start and stop a tune three or four hundred times a day. Maybe you don't think that can't drive you nuts. So now and then I go home terribly upset. But do I find peace and quiet? No!

"When I walk in the door, my wife is playing—of all things—the piano, and my boy is practicing on his trombone. What a life!"

To help soothe his jaded nerves, Eddie bought himself a saddle horse. Now, almost every evening after work, he takes a brisk canter near his country home.

Eddie started playing for movie studios back in 1922—plunking out "mood music" in the piano or organ for Pola Negri, Bebe Daniels, Clara Bow and Corinne Griffith.

That was in the old silent film days. When the talkies came in, and music and dance routines became popular on the screen, Eddie took up his present job.

Some of the best dancers he ever played for were Ann Miller, Eleanor Whitney and Johnny Downs. He considers Fred Astaire and Eleanor Powell among the best hoofers on the screen, but they always carry their own piano players for their rehearsals.

Right now, Eddie is playing for

Hull's Talk Is Pillar of Fire for Allied Peoples Fighting for Peace

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
(Wide World News Service)

Secretary of State Hull's constructive program for a better world after the carnage has ended must be recorded as one of the major developments of the war.

Anomalous though it may seem to talk about peace problems at the moment, this is precisely the time when it may be most beneficial. Mr. Hull's great document, in which we have a mingling of the spiritual and political, reaches out in four directions:

It is a pillar of fire for the Allied peoples as they march for victory. It affords encouragement to the enslaved people of the occupied countries. It rebukes neutrals for their "absurd and suicidal" policy. And last, but certainly not least, it may in due course provide the impulse for the populations of enemy countries to abandon their support of a barbaric aggression for which many of them have had little heart.

The soft-spoken gentleman from Tennessee has brought a wealth of humanity to his historic task. He remains the evangelical prophet who for so many years tried to persuade Europe that it was headed for war; and he still, so to speak, carries his duelling pistols in his hat pockets, for he has mixed charity with firmness.

There are many facets to this new-world diamond which will blaze so brightly when the light of peace is turned upon it. We are to build for "human freedom and Christian morality." And at long last Mr. Hull may get a chance to see the removal of international trade barriers which he so patiently and persistently has advocated as essential to the economic security of mankind. But, perhaps, the point which will attract most attention is the provision for an international agency to keep the peace "by force, if necessary" for that represents the teeth in any measure of reform. Without an agency which can compel peace, we shall get a repetition of the tragedy of the Marble Palace on the shore of Lake Geneva.

Mr. Hull doesn't specify the nature of the agency, but the trend of events leads one to envisage a policing of the world so long as necessary by the Big Four of the Allies—the United States, Britain, Russia and China. There lies the power which can maintain order while reconstruction is carried out. The time has passed when we can afford to depend on soft language to keep would-be conquerors like Hitler within the bounds.

Speaking of Hitler reminds us of another duty which the Allies must perform. As Assistant Secretary of State Sumner Welles put it recently, we must mete out swift, inexorable justice to individuals, groups or peoples responsible for the war. The mainspring of all this evil is, of course, the Nazi fuhrer and he, together with his captains, must pay the price.

Still, while we must exact justice there's one thing which we mustn't do if we are to get the new world we want—and that is to approach the peace with hatred in our hearts. The Earl of Selbourne, British minister of economic warfare, last month assured the House of Lords that "Britain will never propose a revenge peace," and that clearly also is the underlying thought in Secretary Hull's program.

DR. RAY J. NAUSS FIRST DENTIST HERE IN SERVICE

Assigned To Ft. Knox and Is To Report There for Duty on Monday

Dr. Ray J. Nauss today was saying goodbye to his friends and patients and winding up his affairs to go into the army next Monday.

Dr. Nauss, who came here from New Holland eight years ago to enter the practice of dentistry, has been commissioned a first lieutenant in the army dental corps and assigned to Ft. Knox. He volunteered his professional services several months ago and applied for his commission then, but it was not until comparatively recently that he was called to Ft. Hayes in Columbus for his physical and technical examinations.

His office and town home on North North Street have been closed and his country home near Johnson's Crossing has been offered for sale.

As he prepared to leave, he said he was anxious to get into the service. The only regret he said he had was leaving Washington C. H. and his friends here and in the surrounding community. He said he would "really miss" his country home where he went in his spare time in the evenings, in little Compton Creek. He has been in the service before, though not in wartime, and said he liked army life—"once you get accustomed to it." He practiced dentistry in New Holland for two years before coming to Washington C. H. He is a native of Greenville.

Mrs. Nauss, he said, will remain here for a while and then either join him at Louisville or make her home with her brother in the northern part of the state for the duration. Originally, he said, Mrs. Nauss had planned to accompany him but, he added, that the housing situation around Ft. Knox made this inadvisable.

Dr. Nauss said he plans to return to Washington C. H. and resume his practice after the war.

He is the first dentist to go from here into the service. Two physicians, however, already have entered and are on duty with the armed forces. They are Dr. James M. Harsha, commissioned a major, and Dr. James Thompson, a lieutenant.

NAVAL TASK FORCE WITH BRITISH FLEET

Yanks Have Had 'Flurries'
With Enemy Planes

LONDON, July 24—(AP)—Rear Admiral Robert C. Giffen, commander of a U. S. naval task force with the British fleet, disclosed today the force had been in action against enemy aircraft.

Admiral Giffen described the operations as "just the usual thing."

Units of the American force have had flurries with planes but so far have not brushed with the enemy naval craft, he said, adding that no severe damage has been suffered.

"Everything is all right so far," he said.

The American fleet units were operating "in the north—against polar bears or something," before the United States entered the war, Admiral Giffen disclosed.

HOG FEEDERS WARNED AGAINST 'SOFT PORK'

WASHINGTON, July 24—(AP)—The Agriculture Department today urged hog feeders in the soybean areas of the Midwest to guard against an increase in the production of "soft pork." This is a term applied to meat produced from hogs fattened on excessive quantities of whole soybeans. Such meat, the department pointed out, is particularly unsuited for use of troops in the fields.

Baber-Stuckey Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Baber, of Jeffersonville, are announcing the marriage of their eldest daughter, Mary Alice, to Raymond C. Stuckey, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Stuckey, of Jeffersonville. The wedding took place Sunday, July 19, at the home of the bride's parents, the ceremony being read at 2:30 P. M. by the Rev. E. R. Rector, pastor of Jeffersonville Methodist Church, in the presence of 40 relatives and friends.

The bride chose for her wedding gown, a white silk crepe dress of street length, which was very becoming to her brunette coloring. Her corsage was red roses. Her sister, Miss Betty Baber was maid of honor and she wore a yellow silk jersey dress with a corsage of yellow roses. The best man was Bradley Stuckey, of Sandusky, brother of the groom.

A reception was held immediately following, the home being most attractive with baskets of glads and bouquets of summer flowers. The wedding cake adorned with the miniature bride and groom, had been baked by the groom's grandmother, Mrs. Asa Stuckey. Following the reception, the happy young couple left for Cleveland, where they will make their home, the groom being engaged in defense work.

The bride is a graduate of the local high school with the class of 1939 and has been working at the Post Office. The groom, a jeweler by trade, was a former Columbus boy and for a short time was in business with his father, local hardware dealer.

Out-of-town guests in attendance at the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Asa Stuckey, of London; Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Roller, of Cleveland; Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Messmer, of North Fairfield; Bradford Stuckey, of Sandusky; Miss Betty Baber, of Dayton; Miss Roselyn Aleshire, of Tremont City; the Misses Grace and Flo Thompson, Roy Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Thompson, daughter Carol Ann, of Selma; Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Hunter, of South Charleston.

Sings at Sabina Institute

The Girls' Choir from the Methodist Church were motored to Sabina Camp Grounds Tuesday evening and sang a group of numbers at the Institute being held their this week by the Youth Fellowship groups. Rev. E. R. Rector is acting as dean over the senior institute this week and Miss Beulah Elliott, former Jeffersonville resident, is on duty as a nurse. Those motoring over were: Anna Lee Young, Evelyn Soddgers, Betty Lou Bartlett, Norma Jean Witt, Dotty Lou Lanum, Juanita Farmer, Elizabeth and Virginia Sears, Jean Hall, Anna Lee Houseman, Fern and Erma Wilt, members of the choir, Mrs. E. R. Rector, A. F. Ervin, Mrs. Eugene Heironimus, Mrs. O. L. Wiseman, Mrs. Leora Bocco, Mrs. Warner Straley. Other members of the choir: Martha Straley, LaVaun Rector, Ruth Elinor and Lois Faye Wiseman, Caroline and Anna Smith and Grace Wade are attending the Institute this week.

Burial at Fairview

Durwood Murphy, of Lorain, a former Jeffersonville resident, died at the Chillicothe Hospital where he was a patient and burial was made here in the Fairview Cemetery on Wednesday. His mother was the former Miss Flora Fewell, former resident of this place.

The Past Chief Club meeting for this month has been postponed.

STRIKE TROUBLE

The recent reports of new strikes, most of them in defense industries, have been a somewhat discouraging slap at the American war effort. Some of the causes for a number of these strikes, if correctly reported, are of an exceedingly petty nature.

Nearly everybody is willing to grant that a vast majority of American working people are as patriotic as any body of citizens in the country. Some of their leaders, however, who seem to thrive on the racketeering side of organized labor, maneuver along such lines that many workmen are compelled to join in strikes even against their will.

Certain labor groups have broken their pledges to the government and the nation about not striking and about keeping up production. This is done at a crucial time, when the fate of the civilized world hangs in the balance. Do the labor leaders and their followers realize what they are doing? And can they really expect to get any good out of it in the long run?

The Federal Labor Board is ready to grant all just and reasonable demands through normal procedure, without stopping the flow of arms production.

The big fact, however, is that this arms production is essentially a military job, and that the workmen have no more business striking, and thereby endangering production, than soldiers have to strike on the field of battle. The workmen themselves may realize this more clearly than do their business leaders.

The government has power to stop such dangerous foolishness. It can militarize labor for the duration of the war—put the war workers all in the army, so that a strike would be a mutiny. But that should not be necessary in a decent civilized and patriotic nation.

WHAT IS INFLATION?

Inflation, as described in the dictionary, is a disproportionate and relatively sharp and sudden increase in the quantity of money or credit or both, relative to the amount of exchange business. In accordance with the law of quantity theory of money, inflation always produces a rise in the price level.

In simpler language and applied to the present situation, inflation is caused by a shortage of consumer goods and a tremendous increase in the amount paid out in wages.

For the time being, we have stopped making automobiles, refrigerators, bicycles and other useful, peacetime products that we could buy and use any time and have concentrated on the production of warplanes, tanks, guns, bombs and

Washington at a Glance By Charles P. Stewart

This year's election is a simple enough proposition. Only senators' and representatives' seats are at stake. Candidates haven't been very vocal on the stump. They've been too generally detained in Washington to get out and campaign. Also there has been a good deal of resentment in congress concerning the bitterness with which the lawmakers' wartime legislating has been criticized. The war hasn't been going over satisfactorily from the United Nations' standpoint, and congress has been popularly panned for developments' unsatisfactoriness more vigorously than our executive administration has.

Illustratively in a Washington newspaper the other day I read a "letter to the editor," from one of the publication's readers who tells of the tremendous clean-up he thinks he could have made already "if we had a wide-awake government."

By government he means the legislative end of it, for he adds, "But our congress consists of a lot of rusty politicians, who know as little about war as about thrift or economy and prefer to spend billions on ridiculous boondoggies."

Such comment, of which there is plenty, isn't calculated to guarantee a friendly contest at the polls.

Congress' Answer

If there's a bunch of "rusty politicians" on Capitol Hill, it makes them particularly sore, because their contention is that the works, in so far as they've been gummied, from Uncle Sam's angle, have been executed, not legislatively, gummied.

Hence it's a mean congressional campaign.

Still it's only normally mean. The 1940 campaign was presidentially mean on account of the third term issue.

Still, it slid across with a reasonable degree of harmony. Results showed that the public accepted the emergency as justifying disregard of a national anti-third term precedent, and there was no violent holler contrariwise.

This year, even if there's ugliness, no precedent's involved.

But suppose the war's still raging in 1944?

Or suppose the war's over but a heck of an economic crisis is on hand?

How about a fourth term in the White House?

If that question isn't asked, it's poor guessing.

Three terms, as an exception, passed muster. But would four of 'em?

Politicians won't discuss it as a possibility. Democrats won't do it, because the idea scares 'em. Republicans won't, because they're afraid of being accused of present-day anti-administration sympathies. Dozens of 'em are confidentially putting the problem to one another, though.

Say the war ends before early 1944. Okey, that'll be the answer. Say the United Nations will have won by then, and our own economies have been slicked up by then. Okey, also.

But say the muss is still rampant, with the outcome dependent upon United National 100 percent solidarity. If the Axis has us and our associates on the run by that time, as it has, to a certain extent, at present, there's no telling. But if we and the rest of the aggregation seem to be just on the verge of scoring near-victory or possible victory, then what?

Will we want to turn over the boss-ship of our job to a new administration?

And yet, if we don't—Four terms in the presidential office!

Who'd be discussed as a Rooseveltian rival?

Wendell Willkie's most frequently mentioned.

I don't know why he should be. He is, though.

Anyway, the idea of a 16-year president isn't dismissed as an impossibility in Washington—and the suggestion's made that 16 years might run on into indefinite perpetuity.

It would depend upon subsequent circumstances.

There even is speculation as to who President Roosevelt's inheritor should be. It might be Willkie, if in a hurry, but later?

You can't talk, these times.

A sharp temper, fierce emotions and a vivid imagination are the salient traits of persons who have birthdays today. They should beware of praise and flattery, be more poised and level-headed. These persons have talent and ability, but should develop self-confidence. On the whole, a fortunate year is presaged for them. They should guard against deception in love or social matters. Pleasant financial surprises will be experienced by them. Born on this date a child will derive much help from old people and be successful; but sorrow through loss of relatives and friends may occasionally affect the health.

other things that are useful only in wartime. We have stopped making the things we want and are making the things we must have to win the war.

Thousands of formerly unemployed now have jobs. Added thousands are making more money than they ever made before. So, with more money in our pockets to spend and less to spend it on, either the value of money is reduced or the value of the goods has increased—figure it out either way—the result is the same. They both mean inflation to the man in the street.

The danger in inflation lies in the fact that when it is in operation, all the money we earn and all the money we have saved is worth less to us and to everyone else. Inflation is just as simple as that and just as dangerous. That is why the business people of the country are so interested in combating it.

AFTER ALL that has been said, written and propagandized about the state of the national nutrition, it is a relief to have a book by Dr. Morris Fishbein, "The National Nutrition," which gives us some common-sense facts.

Examination of the men who were rejected under the Selective Service showed that less than a fraction of 1 per cent of them were underweight, but a number of them were rejected because they had evidences in their bodies of dietetic and nutritional errors which occurred when they were young.

Surveys made in 1936 and 1937 showed that 1/4 of the families in the United States had diets rated as good, 1/2 were rated as fair and the rest were rated as poor. This does not necessarily mean, however, according to Dr. Fishbein, that as a whole the national nutrition is in a very perilous state. He says: "When a Texas county reported, according to Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security Administrator, that 'malnutrition has been a contributing cause in approximately 60 per cent of the deaths in this county for the past five years,' it was reporting a generalization and not an established fact."

"No doubt," he continues, "all of us have some malnutrition. I doubt that anyone subsists long on a perfect diet. The human being is not constituted to live on a perfect diet. His mind makes him partake of innumerable follies in the selection of food. He is cursed with appetites. There are fat people who are malnourished."

What all of this does mean is that we must continue to take care of the national nutrition in a common sense way. I believe that in respect of the stimulus of wartime, the improvement in our national nutrition in the last 20 years has been more remarkable than that exhibited by any peoples who have lived.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE
JEROME STEPPED closer to Miss Martha, and Dian couldn't help but see them, since the street light threw a bar of silver across the porch floor. "Anyway, Martha, I saw you in a new light tonight."

"What on earth are you driving at, Jerome?"

"I mean, I saw that you're ornamental."

"Me? At my age?"

"Age has nothing to do with it. Besides, I'm far from young myself. I reckon maybe I am a bit too old for Dian."

"Shucks! A girl like Dian needs an older man to look after her."

"How about you?" said Jerome softly. "Don't you need someone to look after you?"

"Fiddlesticks! I've been looking after myself all this time, so I reckon I can go on."

"Maybe," said Jerome. Then he pulled Miss Martha toward him and kissed her.

"Well!" Miss Martha said explosively. "Well, of all things!"

"Don't be mad, Martha," said Jerome, his voice shaking. "I—I couldn't help it."

"Now I know you're raving, stark crazy!" Miss Martha said. Jerome looked at her for a moment, and then he walked down the steps.

"Good night," he called back. "I've certainly got a lot of thinking to do—after that kiss."

"Well—I never!" said Miss Martha.

She turned quickly, found her latchkey, unlocked the door and went on into the house.

Dian did not move. She sat there in the porchway feeling a bit stunned. It took her some little time to get hold of herself. When she did, she smiled somewhat wryly, and thought: "I lost Fred, and now I've lost Jerome. She also found her latchkey, unlocked the door and went into the house. Quietly, stealthily. She didn't want her Aunt Martha to hear her. She wanted to get to her room and into bed. She couldn't bear the idea of having to talk to anyone.

On Saturday morning Dian opened her eyes to behold a perfect day—a day that was all green and silver beneath a cloudless dome of soft blue. And she was strangely disappointed. She had gone to bed the night before, after an entire day at the farm, actually hoping that Saturday would be a day of rain and general disagreeableness. But it wasn't like that at all. It was a day especially made for picnics—and the birds were singing away as though there wasn't a thing wrong in the whole wide world. And maybe they were right. Maybe she was the only thing that was wrong.

She turned away from the window where she had gone to have a look at the weather, and found herself wishing that even now something would happen to make the picnic an impossibility. She dreaded it with every fiber of her being. She was utterly fed up with being one of Claire Lester's foursome.

But nothing did happen, and by the time she had showered, dressed and had her breakfast, she knew that she would have to go through with it. Besides, Claire was counting on Betsy to take them out to the lake, since Betsy was a roomy old car, and permitted the carrying of such things as picnic hampers, bathing paraphernalia, a bag of charcoal for broiling out-of-doors, and the making of coffee—also blankets to spread out upon the narrow strip of beach.

"We'll have the boys row us out to the little island in the middle of the lake," Claire had said the evening before, when telephoning to discuss final plans. "It'll be fun pretending we've been cast ashore from a wrecked ship."

"Yes, heaps of fun," said Dian without enthusiasm. "I suppose the island will be the setting for your final test—the last act, so to speak, of the comedy drama you've been playing."

"Perhaps," said Claire. "But you needn't take that tone. What's the matter with you anyway, Dian?"

"Nothing at all. Why?"

"You sound as though you'd soured on the whole world."

"Goodness! What a thing to say! I'm just tired, that's all. I spent hours looking over books out at the farm—and what I need's a good night's rest."

"Well, I certainly hope you get it," said Claire, none too pleasantly. "A picnic's no place for a grouch. What time will you stop to pick me up?"

"Around nine-thirty. I'll stop at the inn first and get Bill and Paul. That all right with you?"

"Yes—only don't be here before nine-thirty."

"And now it was morning—the day of the picnic—and Dian was loading her stuff into the car. A cat rubbed against her ankles now and then, and a perky little hen kept begging for something to eat. Dian tossed her a piece of toast upon which she had been nibbling.

"Now," she said, "go lay an egg!"

Miss Martha came out. Dian watched her cross the yard, and wondered if she imagined that her aunt walked with a new springiness. Anyway, she certainly looked sort of different. Could Jerome's

But Girl Photographer Likes 'Em Wild

By ADELAIDE KERR
Lion plus camera equals job to Ylla Koffler.

She is one of the few women photographers of wild animals in the world. She has been inside lion cages, hobnobbed with hippopotami and flirted with chimpanzees.

After 10 years of it she was injured for the first time last March when a panda clawed her at the Bronx Zoo. Ylla, who is young and photogenic herself, walked into the panda's cage according to instructions. And before she could say "hippopotamus" the panda tackled her, threw her and scratched and bit her knees. The keeper rushed to her rescue but several minutes passed before he could pull the panda off. As a result of that fracas Ylla has some bad knee scars.

Much of her time has been spent in photographing other people's pets—both in Europe, where she lived until 1941, and in New York, where she now makes her home. Soldiers off to war, come to her for pictures of their favorite dogs and horses. Old maids order photograph of their cats. But the biggest sources of pet picture revenue, Ylla says, are society women and bachelors.

"Photographing wild animals is the most fascinating job in the world," Ylla will tell you. "There is always a certain risk in going into a cage, and you must always be on guard. You can never be 100 percent sure of any normally wild animal. He may be good for 10 years and bite you in the eleventh. Once when I was photographing a mother water buffalo and her baby in the London Zoo, the father buffalo seemed so friendly, licking my face and poking his head over my shoulder, that I thought he was the nicest wild animal I had ever seen. Next day he killed his keeper."

"Working with animals takes a lot of patience. I once spent days trying to get good pictures of a rich French woman's pet cheetah, which had been captured in Africa. But he had become such a prima donna that he wouldn't pose anywhere but on the softest divan or in her limousine. Another time I had to photograph a flock of fish for a French fish breeder. I thought I'd go crazy before I got the pictures. It took a week. I had to keep the fish in my bathtub all that time."

"The hardest job I ever did was to photograph 60 wild animals, all with their mouths open, to illustrate a book—"Animal Language." I'd much rather photograph animals than people. They never fuss if I show a few wrinkles."

Ylla was born in Vienna of a Yugoslav mother and a Rumanian father and spent most of her girlhood in various countries of central Europe. (She speaks five languages—German, English, French, Hungarian and Serbian.) At 19 she went to Paris to study sculpture, decided she could not make a living at it and switched to photography. A summer in the country pushed her into photographing the cows and pigs.

Her big ambition is to photograph the animals in Yellowstone Park.

BIBLES FOR SERVICE MEN IS PLAN OF GIDEONS NOW

CLEVELAND, July 24.—(AP)—A band of business men who put Bibles at the fingertips of hotel guests, hospital guests, school children and prison inmates has taken upon itself the task of arming soldiers, sailors and airmen with the Gospel. More than 3,000,000 testaments have been distributed among the nation's armed forces since January 1, 1941. A. C. Feigert of Van Wert, Ohio, said today at opening sessions of the Gideons International 43rd annual convention. Two million more testaments are to be ordered soon and ultimately 10,000,000 will be distributed.

GOSSIP HELPS MEXICO GUARD AGAINST U-BOATS

MAZATLAN, Mexico.—(AP)—Here on the west coast of Mexico they are relying on gossip to help fight enemy submarines. Coastal patrol is difficult because of scarcity of boats and planes, lack of adequate harbors and airfields for patrol boats and planes. Eagerness of every farmer, fisherman and villager to find out, discuss and spread accounts of the slightest movement in his neighborhood makes it unlikely, authorities insist, that a submarine could have unobserved contact with the shore. Therefore they welcome gossip. So far, reports of submarines sighted off the coast have not resulted in any being found.

American Legion
And Auxiliary
Picnic Supper

Over fifty Legionnaires and their families enjoyed the picnic supper of the American Legion and their auxiliary which was held at the Gardner Park on Thursday evening.

The summer evening was most enjoyable at the lovely park, which has become so popular for gatherings of this kind, and the affair was an extremely gay one.

One long table was heaped to abundance with a variety of every kind of good food imaginable and the sumptuous repast was served cafeteria style with the guests filling and refilling their plates.

Small tables were arranged on the large lawn surrounding the field house, where intimate circles found their places to enjoy the delicious supper.

Immediately following the supper hour, a business meeting was conducted by the Auxiliary, during which delegates and alternates for the state convention to be held in Canton on August 16, 17, 18 were selected. The delegates are Mrs. Darrell Weinrich, Mrs. Joseph Coberly, and Mrs. Chester Dunn. The Alternates are Mrs. Charles Bryant, Mrs. W. B. Hughes and Mrs. Ray West.

The charter was ordered draped in memory of Miss Doris Caldwell, a former Junior Past President.

Two Table Club
Entertained by
Mrs. James Ford

Members of the Thursday luncheon-bridge club thoroughly enjoyed the always cordial hospitality of Mrs. James Ford on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. C. H. Griffin and Mrs. Walter Evans were guests with the members.

The appetizing courses were served at the dining table, centered with a silver epergne filled with sweet peas and baby breath.

The two tables of members played the afternoon's game in the lovely living room of the Ford home, and gay sociability was the keynote of the entire affair.

Two Table Club
Including Miss Helen King as a guest with the members, Mrs. O. D. Farquhar charmingly entertained her bridge club to a pretty small party Thursday evening.

The spacious rooms of the home were lovely in their profusion of summer flowers, effectively arranged.

The bridge was congenially played, with high score prize presented to Mrs. I. L. Humphrey and Mrs. Jess Feagans, winning the traveling prize. Miss King was presented a lovely gift.

At the close of the evening, Mrs. Farquhar served a very delicious salad course at the small tables, which were centered with small vases of flowers.

LOOM-CRAFT STUDIO
PLANS FAIR EXHIBIT

Hand-woven Articles To Be Featured in Display

One of the interesting displays which the Fayette County Fair has secured is that of the Loom-Craft Studio of near Sabina. The owners of this studio, Mr. and Mrs. Garnett P. January are re-viving in this community the art of hand weaving and will have looms in operation in their booth at the Fair and will explain the fine points of their art.

At their studio in the century-old house, the Peelle Homestead, near Bloomingburg, the Januaries have the walls covered with colorful articles they have woven. These will be on display and for sale at the fair. They have also made their own drapes and many other articles which they are using, and will be prepared to assist the patrons of the Fair with planning unique room ensembles.

One most interest phase of their work, shown by a visit to their studio, is the use made of materials which might otherwise be wasted, into attractive, useful articles. Old stockings were made into a couch cover. Old suits, cotton rags, rayon material were all turned into the durable, double-web rugs in various patterns.

The half dozen looms have not satisfied Mr. January so he is now perfecting his own ideas in a folding loom. This has already found response and sale to those who want to express their artistic talents in weaving, both for a hobby and for practical use. When not in use it folds into a small space for storage and can be easily moved to any location to be used. It is large enough for rugs and suitings but can also be used for the more delicate work too, he says.

FRIDAY, JULY 24
Madison Good Will Grange meets for regular meeting. 9 P. M.

Kensington Club
Entertained with Lovely Party

Mrs. Edgar Snyder was a most gracious hostess when she entertained the ladies of the Thursday Kensington Club, and included one guest, Mrs. George Wilshire, of Cincinnati.

It was a very lovely affair, for which the hostess had made elaborate plans, and the pleasures were graciously and most hospitably extended.

The lovely home was doubly attractive in its numerous arrangements of flowers of every midsummer variety, adding brilliant color notes at points of vantage.

Twenty ladies enjoyed the informal visiting and needlework, and were served a most delicious and tempting salad course at the close of the afternoon.

Mrs. John Dial, Mrs. Frank Hutson and Mrs. Fred Cline assisted Mrs. Snyder with the serving.

Personals

Mrs. David L. Sutherland, of Plain City, was a business visitor here Thursday.

Mr. E. V. Tool is in Columbus where he will assist with the inventory at the Oliver Farm Equipment Co. branch for the next few days.

Captain and Mrs. John F. Otis motored their daughter, Miss Victoria, Miss Dixie Lou Graves, Mr. Jack Adams and Mr. Robert McGinnis to Hillsboro Friday evening to attend the Girl Reserves Dance.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Thompson, of Columbus, and Mr. Fred F. Russell of Dayton, were dinner guests of Mrs. C. B. Porter on Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. C. Bowen and Miss Gayle Bowen motored to Detroit, Michigan, Friday, where Mrs. Bowen will meet her three sisters, including Mrs. Buck of Los Angeles, California, to remain for a week's visit, stopping at the Statler Hotel.

Mr. James Ireland, and daughter, Patty, and Mr. Horace Ireland left Friday for a two days visit with Mr. and Mrs. William Ireland and son, Timothy, in Canton.

Mrs. Aublin Hedges and children of Hillsboro, visited Thursday and Friday here.

Mrs. A. E. Showalter, of Wabash, Indiana, is visiting her father, Mr. George A. Hyer.

Mr. John Wait, and daughter, Marjorie, of Cincinnati, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reinke, Thursday.

Willard Perrills
Entertain Their Dinner Club

A very delightful party was enjoyed Thursday evening, when Mr. and Mrs. Willard Perrill entertained with a dinner and card party, assembling members of the small fortnightly club to which they belong.

The summer evening in the country, with the lovely home filled with baskets of flowers, was most pleasurable and the many hospitalities of the host and hostess were graciously extended.

The dining table was a picture of midsummer beauty in its perfect appointments and decorations. One oblong frosted glass bowl filled with bright colored nasturtiums centered the table. Flanking this were crescent shaped watergardens filled with ragged robins, with white tapers burning at each end of the crescents, making a gorgeous centerpiece.

The three course dinner of fried chicken and accompanying accessories, was most delicious, and the dinner hour particularly gay and enjoyable.

Cards were enjoyed during the evening and informal visiting, with the very congenial host and hostess providing numerous pleasures.

W. R. Hook Guest of Honor

An intimate small supper confined to members of two families was enjoyed on Thursday evening, when Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Speaks complimented Mr. William R. Hook on his anniversary. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Hook, and daughter, Eleanor, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hook, and the host and hostess.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The 50-caliber Browning machine gun is one of the most efficient short range weapons used by U. S. Fighting forces. It is effective at ranges up to 2,000 yards and fires about 600 forty-five caliber bullets per minute.

One of these guns costs about $1,500, while a thirty-caliber machine gun costs approximately $600. Our fighting forces need thousands of these rapid-fire guns. Even a small town or community can buy many of them by uniting in the purchase of War Bonds. At least ten percent of your income in War Bonds every pay day will do the trick.

Tarzan Coming to Fayette Next Week

High in a tree-top... Johnny Weissmuller as Tarzan defends Maureen O'Sullivan, Johnny Sheffield and Cheeta, the chimpanzee comedian from jungle perils in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Tarzan's New York Adventure," coming to the Fayette Theatre Sunday and Monday.

YANKS LEAD TOUGH LIFE
IN PROTECTING ALASKA
FROM JAPS ON ALEUTIANS

They have pared living down to its essentials. They sleep and eat—when such necessary luxuries are available—in tents and burrows in the soggy tundra. They fight in airplanes, flying in weather that at its mildest would keep any peacetime plane nailed to the ground.

The islands they cling to are desolate and savage.

The trip began from a nameless base on the southern shore of the great peninsula. We started in a Catalina flying boat. Banking steeply to avoid a jutting cliff and leveling off across a 1,000-foot pass so low the scrubby fir trees almost scraped the big boat's hull.

We turned westward and set a course down the peninsula in weather that, for once, was good. Two hours later it began to close in and I saw the sun only once again in nine days.

The wet cold of the islands soon bit into me, an emergency solved by shoving a pile of miscellaneous gear off a bunk and climbing into an eiderdown sleeping bag.

Five hours later the gunner shook me awake and told me to get up because we were ready to land. We were outside Dutch Harbor, he said.

I scrambled back through the plane to the gun blisters and looked out into a gray wet world in which the only distinguishable features were the darker gray waves directly beneath. There was no land, no sky, nothing but fog.

"Who knows it's Dutch Harbor?" I yelled.

"The navigator," he grinned. "He's never missed yet."

But we didn't land. We cruised circles for an hour but the rocky harbor entrance was so choked with fog that we couldn't get in.

Two hours later under a lowering sky we slipped into a desolate bay and landed. The big boat hit the water with a ripping sound as though she had come down in wet concrete.

This was a dispersal point. The radioman scrambled into the gun-bay with a signal lamp and soon a motor whaleboat came bucking through the seas to pick us up. That night we slept aboard an old destroyer converted to duty as a seaplane tender, and we stayed two days, for next morning the wind had risen to gale force and the ship pitched and strained at anchor even in the harbor.

This tender had serviced the flying boats through the worst of their two-weeks ordeal early in June when the Japs were in these waters with aircraft carriers, cruisers, transports and subs. Some were still there.

On the second day I went ashore to acquire as vivid a memory as I shall ever have. The boat put me within reaching distance of a 50-foot ladder up the cliff and I scrambled up while a fiendish wind tore at my borrowed raincoat and threatened to jerk me back to the water.

At the top I saw the tundra for the first time. A hummocky morass that looks like land God plowed experimentally and then wisely decided to throw away.

If that were true probably he would be surprised at the use his children have made of it. For that bleak, treeless plain under a sky as heavy as heartbreak was filled with American airplanes, trucks, shacks, tents and American fighting men.

Four-engined B-17 and B-24 heavy bombers, fast P-40 and P-38 fighter-planes and a half dozen huge amphibian Catalinas crouched along a runway.

In a lantern lit shack I found a field telephone and soon a truck driven by a cheerful kid from Texas came jouncing over the tundra to get me.

"This is a hell of a place," I told him.

"Well, it ain't Texas," he admitted. "But you get used to it." We halted alongside a cluster of brown, sod-banked tents and he led me to one. It had no floor and no light. A couple of cots and a heap of muddy gear filled the interior. This was headquarters and home for the squadron skipper, he said.

In the darkness we stumbled down an incline into the ground, passed through a rough board door and found ourselves in an underground chamber walled with scrap lumber. A typewriter's clack and the nervously hissing spark gap of radio greeted us.

The skipper, a tired, sandy haired man clad in a weird assortment of army and navy winter clothing, greeted me, pumped me eagerly about the war in the southern Pacific, arranged my further transportation and sent somebody to find me a bunk for the night.

That night we slept in a tent and by morning another 70-knot wind had the canvas cracking like gunfire while rain slatted through the flaps.

The wind abated during the day and we got away at a Cat amphibian.

This day the weather was clear for an hour and we passed Mount Shishaldin's smoking, snow blanketed spire in bright sunlight. Few have ever seen that awesome peak, for almost always it is wrapped in fog.

We made Dutch Harbor that day after challenging three aircraft en route. Each time an unidentified speck appeared near us the gunners unstrapped their guns, opened the blisters and waited until the plane was identified. It was not many days since the Japs had appeared here and there was no guarantee they wouldn't come again.

That night there was dinner at a table and there was a bath. A luxury appreciated no less because the water has a quality of turning brick red when heated.

Next day we were off again, heading for the makeshift outpost from which the Kiska bombers jump off, and we found that almost a repetition of our first dispersal point—with several important differences.

Our new tents had floors and fires, but the food supply here consisted only of canned sausage, canned cornbeef and canned salmon. It is not difficult to learn to hate salmon.

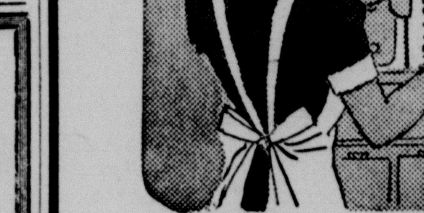

Here was no tundra, but real grass and wild violets as large as half dollars speckled the green with stars. Here, too, a few quanset huts varied the canvas skyline. A quanset hut is an igloo of corrugated iron and if you've been living in a tent under perpetual rain a quanset is palatial.

The mud as always, was knee deep. Whenever the rain stopped for two hours altogether, some alchemy of Alaskan soil and weather converted a good share of mud into a choking dust cloud that floated over the plain.

That night I shared a tent with eight PBV aviators, some who had lived through weather crack-ups and others who had been shot down. The oldest was 28, the youngest not more than 20.

Next morning I would fly to Kiska in a B-17 and they were going out on patrol flights that would keep them aloft in the soup for as many as 20 hours.

The trip to Kiska might have been a nightmare but was actually a miracle of aerial navigation. The big bomber took off, circled once and ducked under the sea-hugging fog. Four hours thereafter we saw no land, nothing but the fog pressing down and a narrow circle of water racing along below us. We saw no land until we pulled through the soup and found the rocky break of our target rearing through the murk a few miles away.

Allied fighters in yesterday's attacks skimmed over the whitecaps to spray deadly machinegun bursts into troop-jammed landing barges and the pilots related that panic-stricken soldiers hurled themselves into the water to escape their fire. Ashore, the fighters shot up machinegun nests and silenced an anti-aircraft battery. Other fighters pounced on a small enemy ship north of Salamaua, itself 150 miles northwest of Buna. CAPTURE OF ROSTOV CLAIMED BY GERMANS; U. S. PLANES IN FIGHT

The Tikhoretsk-Stalingrad railway which roughly parallels the course of the lower Don between Rostov and Stalingrad, an air line distance of 250 miles. Tikhoretsk, south of Rostov, is at the junction of this railway and the north-south line from Rostov into the Caucasus. The Germans at their Tsimlyansk position were about 35 miles from the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk link. Rostov Lost Before The Germans took Rostov last November 21 only to lose it after brief occupation. Now, Transcaucasian, German troops have bridgeheads on the east bank of the upper Don (the Voronezh front) and on the southern bank of the lower Don and "can launch new attacks whenever German leadership issues orders to that effect." The agency thus repeated a claim which the Hitler command made two days ago and then let lapse—that the lower Don had been crossed on a broad front east of the Donets River. Rostov itself lies on the Don's north bank and its capture would not entail a crossing. An older claim which the regular Berlin communiques have dropped is that Voronezh, 300 miles north of Rostov, is in German hands. Today's Moscow communique said Russian troops through the night had "fought the enemy in the areas of Voronezh and also in the areas of Tsimlyansk, Novocherkassk and Rostov. No changes took place in other sectors of the front." That was the extent of the official Russian mention of Rostov although the communique described fighting in the Novocherkassk area, about 20 miles northeast of Rostov, near the bend of the Axai River. The Rostov situation and developing battles further up the Don valley, including a sharp menace to Stalingrad, an industrial center on the Volga where it elbows close to the Don bend, constituted a mighty threat to Russia's southern lifeline link with Allied forces in the Middle East. This and a looting of the Cau-

DAY'S ACTIVITIES IN WALL STREET NEW YORK, July 24.—(P)—There was no rush to sell in today's stock market but buyers were too timid to touch off any real recovery blasts. Dealings, fairly active at the opening, dwindled to a mere trickle later, with the ticker tape halting for lengthy intervals. Scattered plus marks were in evidence but small fractional declines were widespread. Bullish forces were encouraged by the meagerness of offerings, but brokers admitted that purchasing restraints remained in disturbing Russian war developments, the revival of tax apprehension and the waning of inflation psychology.

Gay Two-Piece Style

By ANNE ADAMS

"I want a two-piece that has a different look!" Here it is—in an Anne Adams Pattern, 4138. This style is neat, trim and simple, yet is subtly feminine in the shaping of the optional collar and in the scallops at the front of jacket hem. The slim skirt has an inverted pleat.

Pattern 4138 is available in misses' sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20. Size 16 takes 3 3/8 yards 35 inch fab.

Red Cross Surgical Dressings Unit Planned Here

TRAINED STAFF OF SUPERVISORS TO DIRECT WORK

At Least Six Groups To Be Formed—Call To Be Made Soon for Volunteers

The American Red Cross has called on Fayette County to produce surgical dressings for use in the hospitals of American armed forces and those of the allied nations, during the present war, and work on these will be started soon under the direction of the Fayette County chapter.

Twenty chapters in Ohio were selected for this work, which requires the strictest of rules, on the record of like work done in World War I, and it is considered an honor to the chapter here to have been chosen for this assignment.

The Surgical Dressing Unit is now being formed, under the direction of Mrs. Martha Braun who spent several days last week in Dayton receiving special instruction in a Red Cross school. Mrs. Braun, as chairman of the committee here, will be assisted by Mrs. Marie Craig and a staff of trained supervisors in the work.

Present plans call for five afternoons and an evening group each week to produce the allotment of 20,000 dressings each month. This allotment is expected to be doubled or trebled, according to Mrs. Braun, as needed by national headquarters.

Information given at the school, Mrs. Braun said, showed that only 10 percent of the needed hospital dressings can be made commercially and that the Red Cross is being called upon to furnish the balance.

Dressings made here will be of nine different kinds and regular shipments will be made to Red Cross warehouses after production is started. Distribution will be made from these to points where needed.

The National Red Cross furnishes all materials to make the dressings and instruction for making and packing. The work will be done in classes which meet regularly each week. Just as soon as supplies are received here, a school of instruction will be set up for workers. Production will get under way then.

Through the cooperation of the trustees of Memorial Hall and the various patriotic organizations using the room, the meeting room on the second floor will be turned over to the Surgical Dressing Unit and arrangements made for the various meetings to be held elsewhere in the building for the duration of the present emergency. This, it was pointed out, makes an ideal workshop for the unit since it is centrally located and available at all hours with heat and light and other facilities. Miss Mary Robinson, secretary of the Fayette County Chapter, Miss Edith Gardner, who had charge of the surgical dressings program in the last war, and Mrs. Braun have pronounced the setup here as "one of the finest" and have announced that a call for volunteer workers will be made in the near future.

Present plans call for a group of women to work each afternoon and one group for an evening session, each of which is to be of three hours. The workers will wear any wash dress with a triangle head covering as prescribed by the Red Cross regulations, and each will be assigned to a group meeting at a certain time each week.

Two hundred women may be needed to produce the allotment of dressings given this chapter, although Mrs. Braun expects to start with a smaller number at first and speed production later as directed, with added workers and classes.

Information for volunteer workers will be made public as soon as available, and a suggestion that various social groups might prefer to work together meets with the entire approval of the unit committee. In such cases one member may volunteer for the group and be assigned a working period most convenient to the members. However, according to Mrs. Braun, only volunteers who can attend their sessions each week can be accepted due to the fact that production must be maintained and a steady supply of dressings made for shipment as ordered by national headquarters of the Red Cross.

DIVORCE ACTION

Suit for divorce on grounds of gross neglect of duty has been filed in Common Pleas Court by Opal M. Rockwell, against Frank Rockwell. The parties were married in Kenton County, Kentucky, August 17, 1917, and have two children. Reasonable alimony, divorce and other relief are asked. E. L. Bush represents the plaintiff.

$27,000 WORTH OF WAR BONDS SOLD IN JULY

Nearly Half of Quota Is To Be Purchased in Next Few Days

With only a few more days left in July, this county is still nearly half of its quota of $52,000 behind in the sale of War Bonds and Stamps.

F. E. Hill, chairman of the War Bond and Stamps organization in Fayette County, said Friday that he had filed the third report for this month, and the total reported at that time was $27,000.

Committeemen are active in pushing the sale of War Bonds and Stamps, Hill stated, and a booth for the sale of bonds and stamps will be open at the Fair during the coming week, to help boost the sales.

In the meantime Hill urges the public generally to purchase generously of bonds and stamps so that Fayette County will maintain her high standing in supporting the government in prosecution of the war.

Civil Service Positions At Wright Field Open

If you can type 35 words a minute and take dictation in shorthand at the rate of 96 words a minute, you stand a good chance of getting a job that will pay you, at the start, $1440 a year.

If you are interested, inquire at the United States Employment Service, East Market Street, for details.

Charles Dunton, manager of the Washington C. H. office of the USES said that a representative of the Civil Service Commission would be in Washington C. H. to conduct examinations. Applicants who can qualify, Dunton said, probably would receive immediate appointment and be assigned for duty at Wright Field, near Dayton, with the Air Service Command.

Already scores of men and women in Washington C. H. have taken positions at the country's

LEESBURG YOUTH KILLED TRYING TO DESERT ARMY

John W. Carl Shot When He Refuses To Halt at Guard's Command

A 23-year-old man from Leesburg paid with his life early Friday for an attempt to escape military service.

John William Carl, who has friends in both Washington C. H. and Fayette County, especially down in the southern part not so far from his own home community, was shot and killed by a guard at the army's Fort Hayes in Columbus as he fled the post.

Few details of the incident were immediately available but an official announcement said that Carl had attempted to desert twice previously. He was apprehended early this week near Hillsboro by Sheriff Cleo Shaffer of Highland County.

In his latest attempt to make a get-away he was "shot and killed instantly" when he refused to halt at the guard's command, the official announcement said.

He was inducted into the army on July 4.

Major Shelly G. Hughes, who was appointed to investigate the shooting, said Carl's body would be taken to Greenfield for burial.

Real Nickel Saver

Henry C. Myers, above, a Westinghouse engineer, has evolved a means of saving nickel, a metal needed to armor-plate tanks and warships. Myers has discovered that hipersil, a magnetic steel, can replace nickel alloy in application of ignitrons, devices which change alternating current electricity into direct current. As result, one manufacturer alone this year will conserve 20,000 pounds of nickel, enough to armor-plate 55 medium tanks. Myers is shown working with an ignitron part made of hipersil.
